Invitation to Russian Arbitration
Networking Reception
24 February 2011

Interested in Russia and in international arbitration?

We are pleased to announce the creation of a new group for arbitration professionals under 40 years of age with an interest in Russia-related matters, whether based in Moscow, London or elsewhere.

The idea is simple: meet several times a year for a discussion of arbitration involving Russian parties and/or Russian interests.

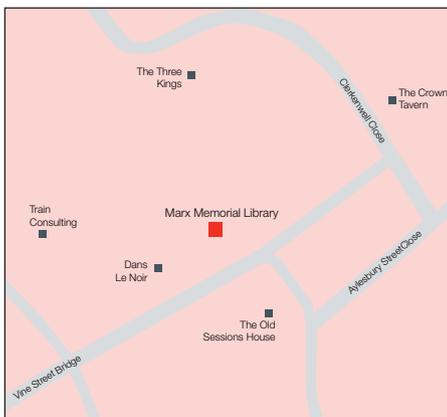

Future events will entail panel discussions and more structured dialogue, but we would like to keep the first event informal, to get to know each other.

We request the pleasure of your attendance at a networking reception on Thursday, 24 February 2011 from 19:00-22:00 at the Marx Memorial Library (near Farringdon Station).

Drinks and canapés will be offered, as well as a short talk about Lenin's London years (he had an office in the same building as the reception will be held).

The event will be co-hosted by the British-Russian Law Association.

RSVP by Monday, 20 February 2011, to christina.schuetz@cliffordchance.com. Please forwards this invitation to others who may be interested.
